$8,000 LOSS IN FIRE AT VERSAILLES

The large bungalow owned by the Versailles Sanitary Fire company.

The building is comparatively new, having been remodelled a year or so ago for a residence for the superintendent of the mill. It is an eight room, story and a half wooden building.

The cause of the fire is unknown but from appearances it started around the heater in the cellar and had gained good headway before the flames burst through the roof and attracted the attention of the neighbors. The house is situated on a hill just east of the mill and the burning structure made a spectacle that could be seen for miles around. The reflection of the blaze could be seen in Norwich and many from this city went to the fire thinking that it might be one of the mills in that locality.

Mr. Woodward's household and personal goods were entirely destroyed and it was said on Thursday evening that he had no insurance on them. The house itself covered by insurance. The loss by fire is estimated at $8,000 to $9,000.

NO RESIDENT DOCTORS IN 46 TOWNS IN STATE

Though with the telephone, the automobile and a fast increasing network of good roads, it is possible to summon a physician to any part of Connecticut upon short notice, it remains a fact that there are forty-six towns in this state where there are no registered physicians.

It would seem that this state offers several good localities for a general practitioner to hang out his shingle, and indeed, such is the case according to Dr. J. T. Black, state commissioner of health, and Dr. Robert L. Rowley of Hartford, secretary of the examining board of the Connecticut Medical society.

The medical movement toward the cities has left those numerous small hamlets that are on the edge of larger towns or cities with no doctor in the neighborhood precluding the possibility of fine personal relationships that formerly existed between the country physician and the residents of his community.

The list of towns in Eastern Connecticut that are without a doctor, as contained in the last edition of the state register is: Andover, Ashford, Bolton, Bozrah, Brookfield, Canterbury, Chaplin, Columbia, Eastford, Franklin, Hebron, Lebanon, Ledyard, Ellington, Salem, Scotland, Sterling, Union.

SUES NOANK MAN TO GET BACK HIS PROPERTY

Earl L. Wilson of Providence has brought suit in the superior court against Rowell A. Lamb of Noank to get back property worth $2,000 which Wilson claims he was induced by misrepresentation to deed to Lamb.

The plaintiff Wilson represents that he is the sole heir and surviving husband of Ella Lamb of Groton, who died July 23, 1918. On or about July 17, 1916, it is claimed that Rowell Lamb represented that he had the power to sell the property to Wilson and he thereby induced Wilson, who is of advanced years, to agree that, if Lamb would remain unmarried, Wilson would allow Lamb to have the life use of Wilson's undivided half interest in the estate of his mother, Ella Lamb, during Lamb's lifetime, in consideration of paying the taxes and other expenses on the property.

On Oct. 16, 1916, it is claimed that Wilson was induced by Lamb fraudulently to execute a deed to get back property worth $2,000 which Wilson claims he was induced by misrepresentation to deed to Lamb.
